

NEW CAREER

Veterans Are Given About Course Unique in Canada

Norman Atkinson, Canadian Press Staff Writer, said that the medical branch of Canada's R.C.M.C. is starting a new career for the war veteran.

The 31-year-old veteran, who served with the Black Watch in the First World War, is now serving the R.C.M.C. with the rank of flight lieutenant. He is now being sent to take a course in watchmaking.

Training and Recreational Institute where 3,700 ex-servicemen and women are employed. There are 60 other courses including horology.

Unique to Canada, the course takes place in a factory. There are 60 people enrolled at present and some 100 more. Students have been attracted from all parts of the Dominion.

R. J. Edwards, of Cornwall, Ont., said he originally intended to go to the United States for a course of study before entering his family's watchmaking business in Canada.

When he was in Italy we thought all they were going to do for us but they have lived up to their promises. They will give us a course of study.

Students sit at long benches equipped with shiny, humming tools. Equipment, valued at nearly $250,000, was donated in part by commercial companies, who are interested in the development of watchmaking.

V. J. Williams, chief instructor in horology, says the spirit of the course is "excellent". There has been only one man dropped from the course and that was his own request.

Free people in horology work in shifts. One group works from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. The second shift starts at 3 p.m. The second shift starts at 3 p.m. The second shift starts at 3 p.m.

Hungry students may satisfy their craving for lucky dollar bills at the school cafeteria which is operated by the Red Cross.

Model organization in which to learn the art of watchmaking. A complete organization in which to learn the art of watchmaking.

When Bill finished all eyes turned towards him. He had gone through the course. He had gone through the course.

SWIFT CALCULATOR

Mathematical Robot Solves Problems in Very Fast Time

By combining a calculator-robot problem solver with a computer, the United States Air Force has come up with a 30-ton machine it calls the "Swift" calculator.

It may make possible more accurate weather forecasting, improved industrial production and general aid in solving mathematical problems.
